Harford County - Special Taxing Districts - Creation

This bill authorizes Harford County to create special taxing districts for developing and financing infrastructure improvements. The county may impose ad valorem taxes and issue bonds and other obligations to finance the improvement projects.

The bill takes effect June 1, 2008.

Fiscal Summary

State Effect: None.

Local Effect: Harford County could realize an increase in revenues due to the collection of special taxes and bond proceeds, and an increase in expenditures due to the financing of infrastructure improvements and debt service. The net fiscal impact would be minimal since revenues from special taxing districts would be used to fund these expenditures.

Small Business Effect: Potential meaningful.

Analysis

Bill Summary: This bill authorizes Harford County to create special taxing districts for the purpose of infrastructure improvements. The types of infrastructure improvements authorized include storm drainage systems; water and sewer systems; roads; lighting; parking; parks and recreational facilities; libraries; schools; transit facilities; and solid waste facilities.

A local law creating a special taxing district must be enacted by a bill adopted by the county governing board. Before the county may establish a special taxing district, all owners of real property within the proposed special taxing district must petition the county for the creation of the special taxing district. The area must be a designated growth area as defined in the county master plan and land use element plan. A special taxing district may not be granted in any of the county's rural villages.

The county governing board must hold a public hearing on a bill creating a special taxing district; at the hearing the board may consider, among other things, the development design standards, the use of transfer of development rights or other methods of achieving density of development, design and usage of open space, and the availability and design of recreational and educational facilities. A law enacted by the county creating a special taxing district must require that adequate debt service reserve funds be maintained.

The bill specifies that a vendor selling real property, in a residential area, subject to a special taxing district tax in Harford County may not enforce a contract for sale unless the purchaser is provided, by mail or hand delivery, with • written disclosure of the terms of the special tax; • a description of the special taxing district; and • disclosure of additional items as specifically required by the bill. Each contract for the sale of residential property in Harford County subject to a special tax must include the text “notice required by Maryland law” along with additional specific language regarding disclosure of the special tax. Among other requirements, the contract must include a statement that a purchaser has the right to cancel a contract of sale within seven days of receiving disclosure of a special tax and that the purchaser is entitled to the return of any deposit that may have been made under the contract. A seller who makes a false statement or omits a material fact may be liable to the purchaser for damages caused by the seller's false or omitted statement. The disclosure of a special tax, as mandated by the bill, is not required for sale of a property to a purchaser who does not intend to occupy the property or in an action to foreclose a mortgage, deed or trust, or other lien.

Current Law: All counties have authority to establish special taxing districts for limited purposes, such as providing drainage improvements or providing street lighting. In addition, the governing bodies of counties that have adopted charter home rule or code home rule also have broad authority under the Express Powers Act to create special taxing districts to carry out most municipal services.

The General Assembly has granted nine counties (Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, Garrett, Howard, Prince George's, St. Mary's, Washington, and Wicomico) and Baltimore City broad authority to create special taxing districts and to levy ad valorem taxes and issue bonds and other obligations for purposes of financing infrastructure improvements. The types of infrastructure improvements authorized include storm drainage systems; water and sewer systems; roads; lighting; parking; parks and recreational facilities; libraries; schools; transit facilities; and solid waste facilities. In Prince George's County, this authority has been expanded to include levying hotel rental taxes and financing the cost for the construction, renovation, and maintenance of convention, conference, and visitors' centers.

As it applies to financing projects in special taxing districts, the definition of "cost" generally includes the construction, reconstruction, renovation, and all lands, structures, or property acquired or to be acquired by the county. It also includes extensions, enlargements, improvements, necessary services, plans and studies, administrative expenses, and certain finance charges and interest associated with the project.

Background: Special taxing districts encompass a broad range of units including entities created by the General Assembly and those created by a county and municipality. Some special taxing districts resemble municipalities and provide a broad range of public services. Other districts exist for a limited purpose, such as the financing specific infrastructure improvements. Despite sharing some features similar to counties and municipalities, these entities lack home rule authority and must come to the legislative body that created them in order to change the scope of their powers.

Local Fiscal Effect: To the extent that Harford County undertakes financing infrastructure improvements, expenditures would increase. To the extent that the county issues bonds as a result of this authority, debt service expenditures could increase. The county could offset the costs of these infrastructure improvements and debt service through the imposition of ad valorem or special taxes, as well as bond proceeds from special taxing districts. To the extent that the county imposes these taxes or issues bonds, revenues would increase. In any event, the net impact is likely to be minimal since revenues generated by the special taxing districts would be used to fund the financing of the infrastructure improvements.

The county advises that expenditures associated with creating and administering the special taxing districts would likely be minimal and absorbable within existing resources.

Small Business Effect: To the extent that the creation of special taxing districts allows Harford County to finance infrastructure improvement projects, small businesses contracting with the county to design and construct the improvements could benefit. If the focus of the special taxing districts is on commercial property and the private sector is one of the expected beneficiaries of any improvements, there could be a potential positive impact of these special taxing districts on small businesses. For example, if a district is created to fund road improvements in a certain area of the county, small businesses could benefit from increased traffic.
