Analysis

Current Law: The Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980 was enacted to address problems in the foster care system and to encourage states to promote permanency in out-of-home placements. The Act also amended Title IV-E of the Social Security Act to provide specified federal matching funds to states, including reimbursing states for 75% of costs associated with the short-term training of current or prospective foster or adoptive parents and the members of the staff of State-licensed or State-approved child care institutions providing care to foster and adopted children. Federal law was amended in 2008 to authorize federal matching funds for costs associated with additional trainees, including members of the staff of abuse and neglect courts, guardian ad litem, and other members of licensed or approved child welfare agencies providing services to children receiving assistance under title IV-E. Federal matching funds for these new trainees is available at 65% in fiscal 2011, 70% in fiscal 2012, and 75% annually beginning in fiscal 2013.
