Analysis

Bill Summary: In developing a “Medical Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment” form and instructions, DHMH must consult with the Office of the Attorney General, the State Board of Nursing, and the State Advisory Council on Quality Care at the End of Life. The form must be suitable for containing a physician’s or nurse practitioner’s written medical orders relating to a patient’s medical condition, including orders regarding the use of life-sustaining procedures. Health care facilities – which include assisted living programs, home health agencies, hospices, hospitals, kidney dialysis centers, and nursing homes – are required to accept and update or complete the form as specified by the bill; other health care providers are authorized, but not required, to accept and update or complete the form. A nursing home or assisted living program must, by April 1, 2012, complete the form for each current patient who was admitted prior to the bill’s October 1, 2011 effective date.

A “Medical Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment” form containing an order that resuscitation not be attempted must be given the same effect as an emergency medical services “do not resuscitate order.” The form is not an advance directive.

DHMH must adopt regulations regarding the “Medical Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment” form and instructions for its completion and use, including instructions on how the form is revised or revoked. DHMH has to make the form and instructions available on its website.

Current Law: A health care facility must provide an admitted individual with the opportunity to prepare an “Instructions on Current Life-Sustaining Treatment Options” form to reflect the individual’s preferences for treatment and care, including preferences regarding the use of life-sustaining procedures and the transfer to a hospital from a nonhospital setting. The voluntary form must be consistent with (1) the decisions of the patient or, if the patient is incompetent, of the patient’s health care agent or surrogate decision-maker; and (2) any advance directive of the patient if the patient is incapable of making an informed decision.

State Fiscal Effect: DHMH and MIEMSS advise that a “Medical Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment” form has already been developed in collaboration with the groups specified in the bill. As the form will be available online and any training or outreach can be handled with existing budgeted resources, the bill does not materially affect State operations or finances.
