Fiscal Summary

State Effect: The bill does not directly affect governmental finances.

Local Effect: None.

Small Business Effect: None.

Analysis

Current Law: The board must issue a mortician or funeral director license to an individual who has graduated with an associate of arts degree in mortuary science from a school that is accredited by ABFSE or approved by the board, or has acquired at least an associate of arts degree and completed a course in mortuary science that is accredited by ABFSE or approved by the board.

Prior to appearing before the board for approval of an apprentice license, an individual must complete two-thirds of the academic credits for a mortuary science program or school accredited by the American Board of Funeral Service or approved by the board, with a 2.0 grade point average or higher that is verified with a certified copy of the college transcript.

Background: According to the board, ABFSE may approve a mortuary science program or course that may be inconsistent with the Maryland Morticians and Funeral Directors Act. Recently, some mortuary science programs (both local institutions and courses offered online) were allowing students to practice embalming at Maryland funeral homes rather than in a campus laboratory. While allowed under ABFSE guidelines, provided that consent is provided by decedents' families, this practice is not allowed under Maryland law. The bill is intended to allow the board to not recognize educational programs with components that are inconsistent with Maryland law, despite approval by ABFSE.
